Camp McKinley Again the Scene of Busy Activity

Second Brigade Troops Begin Week's Encampment at State Ground.

Newark Company G Marched to Camp Sunday Morning--Regiments Arrived Monday--Daily Program--All Provisions Bought in Newark--The Day's Camp Events.

Camp William McKinley, West of Newark, Ohio, Aug. 4.—This little city of tents lying here on the State Encampment ground of the Ohio National Guard, less than two miles west of the thriving and growing city of Newark, is a scene of busy activity today, this date marking the opening of the eight day encampment of the Second Brigade of the Ohio National Guard. It was shortly after noon today before the last of the troops arrived but in little more time than it takes to tell it, everything in the big camp was running as smoothly as if the soldiers had done nothing all their lives but camp.

The Battalion of Engineers under Major McQuigg of Cleveland, arrived Sunday morning early in company with 50 men of the Fifth regiment, under command of Captain Du Perow. The engineers were stationed just east of the "octagon fort" where during the First Brigade encampment the Ninth Battalion was located.

Toward noon details from the other regiments arrived and the Newark Company G, Fourth regiment, under Captain Crawford, marched from the city to the camp ground leaving the armory at 10 o'clock. The G boys went directly to the "circle" where they went into camp to await the coming of the other companies of the Fourth under Colonel A. B. Coit of Columbus. The Fourth infantry arrived this morning shortly before noon and about the same time Colonel Zimmerman, of Cleveland, with the Fifth infantry and Colonel C. A. Thompson of Ironton, with the Seventh, also reached camp. The Seventh came in two detachments. Col. Volrath of Bucyrus, with the men of the Eighth regiment, arrived in camp about 11:30 today.

The Fourth and Eighth regiments were put in the circle where at the last big camp Col. Meade's Third and Col. Ream's Second regiments were located. The Fifth regiment was sent over to that part of the ground recently occupied by Col. S. B. Stanbery's men of the Sixth infantry, on the level strip of land lying west of the parallel mounds which unite the circle and octagon forts. When the Seventh arrived this noon the regiment was marched over to the old First regiment's camp southwest of the circle near the Fourth regiment.

Brigadier General Speaks who has been here since Saturday is using the same quarters that General W. V. McMahon of the First brigade had, and the tents for Governor Nash and General Dick and their staffs are the same as during the First Brigade encampment here.

General Speaks is uncertain this morning just when Governor Nash and General Dick will come but they are expected here during the day to remain all week. As each has the Municipal code bill on his mind at this time, it is probable that they will not give their whole attention to military matters all week, and as it is also quite likely that the week will see many prominent Ohio politicians on the grounds.

General Speaks says that as Adjutant General Corbin is now in the state he will probably visit the camp this week and the officers hope he will come. Major Rogers of the regular United States army, who was detailed to attend the First Brigade en-

FIANCEE

Introduced to His Chum Who at Once Proposed to Win Her Heart and Hand.

Marion, Ind., Aug. 4.—The elopement and marriage of Miss Cora Minnick of this city, to Walter Thompson of Indianapolis, Saturday, was the climax of a pretty romance. It was a case of love at first sight. Grant Mann a local merchant, was engaged to Miss Minnick, and their wedding was to have been celebrated the coming week. Three months ago he introduced his fiancée to Thompson, who then resided here and was his roommate. Thompson became infatuated with her, and when he removed from this city to Waterloo, Iowa, he commenced a correspondence with her. He won her heart and hand, and her engagement to Mann was broken. After their marriage Thompson and his bride left for Iowa, where they will reside. Mann is broken-hearted, and has resigned his position in this city and gone to California, where he will endeavor to forget his lost love.

RUSSEL SAGE

New York, Aug. 4.—Russel Sage is 86 years old today. When asked if he intended retiring from business soon he said: "How can I when I have such extensive interests at stake. I am director in 27 railroad companies and if I retire from business it means a great loss to me." He said he would spend his birthday the same as any other day; that he would be at his business early in the morning and would work as hard as ever.

SENATOR QUAY

Has a Narrow Escape From Death While Fishing Near Atlantic City on Sunday.

New York, Aug. 4.—A special from Atlantic City says U. S. Senator M. S. Quay had a narrow escape from death yesterday. He was out in a little fishing smack enjoying a day's deep sea sport, when one of the most severe storms that has swept the city this summer caught him before he could return to shore. Quay was fishing with his old time friend, Captain Ben Sooy, in the fishing smack M. S. Quay. The smack was ten miles out when the storm came and was driven to sea. Captain Sooy managed to ride out the gale and get his distinguished friend back to Brigantine, where the Senator spent last night very much exhausted by his experience.

CALMLY

And With Indifference the Murderer Was Electrocuted Monday Morning at Sing Sing.

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Aaron Halle was electrocuted at Sing Sing prison this morning for the murder of Mamie Brannigan in May, 1900. He met death with calmness and indifference. Halle's crime was a brutal one. He had been trying to force his attentions upon the girl who was employed at the ribbon counter in a department store at 8th street and Third avenue. He walked into the store and deliberately shot her. Then he coolly lighted a cigarette and declared he was glad he had done it.

Tollon Murder Mystery.

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 4.—Excitement is at fever heat at Nashville, over the latest developments in the Tollon murder mystery and the discovery of persons who heard shots on the morning, a woman's disappearance and the finding of a letter from Tollon to Mrs. Cassie Dalke, a deaf mute, suggesting an elopement. Mr. Dalke made an attempt to leave town but was apprehended in Porter county and brought back, being now held as an accessory in the murder charge.

Wets Win.

Jacksontown, O., Aug. 4.—The result of the ballot in the local option election held in this township last Saturday was as follows: Against the sale of intoxicating drinks, 98 votes. For the sale of intoxicating drinks, 150 votes—a majority of 52 votes.

COLLISION

Between Santa Fe Passenger and Oil Trains—One Man Missing, Four Hurt—Wreck Burned.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 4.—One man is missing and four persons were injured by a Santa Fe passenger train going through an open switch and colliding with an oil train.

Fireman T. D. Martin is supposed to be under the wrecked engine of the oil train.

Engineer H. F. Gardiner is terribly scalped.

Wm. Whitesides, a passenger, suffered a broken arm and brakeman Frank Scott was badly burned.

The fuel tank of one of the engines exploded immediately after the crash, setting fire to the wreck. Burning oil was scattered in every direction and the large oil refining plant of the Coombs Refining Company was set on fire and destroyed, as were all the cars in the wreck except one.

STRIKE IS OVER

Street Car Company Recognizes the Union and Strikers are Reinstated at Ironton

Ironton, Ohio, Aug. 4.—The strike of the Camden Interstate railway employees which started with serious disturbances yesterday, was settled today and the men returned to work. The company recognizes the right of the men to organize and agrees to reinstate all worthy discharged employees.

Dozens of cabs and delivery wagons labeled "Union Cabs" were busy hauling people Sunday and the few cars running were empty. At noon the company gave up efforts to continue cars. All the labor unions in the city sympathize with the strikers. Since the local option election, when the wets won by a nose finish the city has been totally dry on Sundays, and the travel to Ashland, Ky., two miles away on the street car line, has been unprecedented, and 5,000 fares were lost to the company Sunday.

At an early hour Sunday crowds of boys and young men had assembled at street intersections along the line, and despite the protests of the strikers, hurled epithets, dried fruit and eggs of uncertain age at the motormen and conductors to the damage of their wearing apparel and that of the passengers who had no knowledge of the strike. By 11 o'clock the crowds at Elm street bridge and Second and Railroad streets had gained such proportions and were so well supplied with missiles that the nonunion crews refused to run their cars through the gauntlet.

SERIOUS

In the Strike Situation on the Camden Interstate—Trouble is Feared at Night.

Cathalsburg, Ky., Aug. 4.—The strike situation on the Camden Interstate railway here is serious. Order in this city has been good and but little damage has been done to property. Traffic is entirely suspended but the officials are trying to force cars through to Ashland. On all up grades the tracks have been greased. Trouble is anticipated tonight. Nonunion men have been employed and they are heavily armed.

STRIKE AT ASHLAND

Ashland, Ky., Aug. 4.—The strike of the employees of the Camden Interstate railway at this point continues. Five shots were fired by unknown men last night at an underground crossing just above Ashland while the car was en route to Cliffs Park. Hacks and carriages are carrying passengers to and from Cathalsburg. Men here will not accept the settlement made at Ironton.

"ROUGH HOUSE"

Raised by Akron Guardsmen Before Starting to Newark

Capt. Werner Says All the Men in the Affair Will Be Courtmartialed

Three Soldiers Arrested and Fined—Others May Be Arrested Here in Camp—Police of Akron Had Trouble in Making Arrests—This Company Was To Have Been Newark Provst Guard.

Akron, Ohio, Aug. 4.—A squad of police in charge of Captain Guillet made a raid on the armory of Company F, Eighth regiment, O. N. G., this morning at 3 o'clock. The soldiers resisted arrest and made an effort to keep the police from entering the armory. Chairs and other pieces of movable furniture were thrown at the police and for a time it looked as if blood would be shed. The police remained cool and did not open fire on the soldiers, although they were tempted to do so several times.

The armory is located on South Howard, near Market street. Throughout the night it was the scene of outrageous disorder and this morning it looked as though it had been struck by a cyclone. About a dozen members of the company gathered at the armory early Sunday night to be ready to start for Camp McKinley at Newark, Ohio, this morning at 7 o'clock. Other members of the company remained at their homes until this morning.

Early in the evening as people were on their way to church the National Guardsmen began to raise a "rough house" and as night advanced the became bolder. They left their armory and paraded the street, yelling and singing. No one in the neighborhood

THE NEWS AT CAMP M'KINLEY.

Camp McKinley, Aug. 4.—The Advocate this afternoon carried the news of the Akron disturbance and arrest of soldiers to the officers of Camp McKinley. The news created consternation in camp and especial comment from the fact that Company F had been detailed as provost guard for the entire week at Newark.

The Advocate was the first to inform General Speaks, commander of the brigade, of the Akron disturbance. The general was greatly surprised and chagrined over the Akron report, but owing to the fact that the Akron troops had not come into camp as yet, he was unable to announce any decision in the matter. General Speaks spoke in the highest terms of Captain Werner and of the record of Co. F. It was on account of its good record that the company was detailed as provost guard at Newark.

General Speaks said that the guilty men would be punished, but not knowing how many were implicated in the

RULING

On Provisions of Oleo Bill Asked by Mr. Outcalt Who Argues About Palm Oil

Cleveland, Aug. 4.—Circuit Court this morning dissolved the temporary injunction restraining the city council from performing its functions. It was argued by those who got the injunction that the city council operated under a statute which was unconstitutional. The court held that the city must have a legislative body and councilmen are defacto officers till removed from office. The council can now go ahead, approve franchises, and transact business.

DISSOLVED

Temporary Injunction Restraining City Council from Performing Its Functions at Cleveland.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Judge Miller Outcalt of Cincinnati, today made an elaborate argument before the commissioner of internal revenue, Mr. Yerkes, holding that palm oil is a proper and legitimate part of manufactured oleomargarine. He asks for a ruling that oleomargarine of which palm oil is an ingredient, although given a shade of yellow because of its presence, shall be held to be amendable to the tax of one quarter of a cent per pound, and not to the prohibitive ten cent tax. Commissioner Yerkes will make his decision this week.

BLEEDING THE HOME CONSUMER

One of the protectionist medicine men admits that American-made protected goods are sold cheaper abroad than at home, but pleads that they are "only the surplus left over from the home market."

This, of course, is entirely satisfactory. The American consumer, who has to buy from the tariff monopolist whether he wants to or not, pays double price until his consuming capacity is exhausted. Then the foreign consumer, who does not have to buy from the American protector unless he wants to, gets the goods at a price as low as those made by European producers.

It will be interesting to see how this proposition strikes the farmers of the middle west, for example, who are paying more for American-made machinery than German and Russian farmers are paying for the same article after it has been transported 4,000 to 6,000 miles.

COLONEL I. R. HILL

The Washington correspondent of the Sunday Enquirer says:

Col. Isaac Hill, the Democratic war horse from Newark, Ohio, is in Washington. The Colonel thinks the Democratic outlook in Ohio is quite satisfactory. "In my opinion," he said tonight, "the Democrats will carry the Third and Fourth Districts (Dayton and Columbus), now represented by Republicans, which will give them six members of the next delegation. Furthermore, I think they have a fighting chance in two or three other districts."

Colonel and Mrs. Hill will go to Ohio some time this month.

Just What the Trusts Want

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)

Much has been said of conferring on the federal government the exclusive right to regulate trusts. Having been unfaithful over a (comparatively) few things, the federal government is to be made supreme over many things. This is just what the trusts desire. Having control of congress, they desire to be relieved of interference from the state legislatures. Such a measure would cheapen their control of politics and lessen the necessity of direct and indirect bribery. Hence they regard it as a great moral and economical idea.

Should be Just to Ourselves.

(Boston Post.)

We owe it to Cuba to be generous in our commercial arrangements. But why should we not be generous to ourselves? Why should the sugar combine get all the advantage? When the Dingley tariff rates are reduced on Cuban sugar the trust "differentiation" for refined sugar should be removed, as the house bill provides, for the protection of the sugar bowls on American tables.

NOVEL RAILWAY DEVICE.

Obedience to Train Orders Enforced by a Safety Machine.

The Hocking Valley railroad has about completed a test of a device calculated to insure the proper execution of a train order regardless of the forgetting, sleeping or death of the engineer, says a Columbus special to the St. Louis Republic. It has been tried for six weeks, in that time it has traveled 10,000 miles, and not once has it failed to act properly. During that time all the engineers on the north division have had a chance to see it work and try it themselves.

The device itself is more simple than one would expect from the almost humanlike intelligence it manifests. It consists of a large clocklike structure with a rod and by a belt to the truck under the pilot. This registers the mileage in the same manner that a cyclometer does on a bicycle.

The first service it does is to inform the engineer of his distance from his starting point when it is dark and he cannot see customary landmarks. But the interesting feature is the latter or second dial. This is fitted up with a series of ten catches, and each of these catches can move over a period of ten notches. These catches and notches are used to set the dial for any given distance, much as an alarm clock is set, except that it can be set for ten different stops at the same time and the ten different orders will be executed in succession and without interference.

When the engine has run the distance set for the first order, it sounds a warning whistle on the air brake. It then gives the engineer 1,000 feet in which to obey his summons. If he does not do this the action of the clock continues, and the air brakes are applied automatically and the train comes to a full stop. If a slowdown is all that is desired, when the engineer gets the note of warning he can reduce steam and then by pulling out a little plunger prevent the train from stopping.

Jim O'Brien's Epitaph.

"I suppose our western country has furnished more funny things in the epitaph line than all the rest of the world," remarked a Colorado congressman.

"I remember one that adorned the cemetery at Leadville in the palmy days of that great mining camp. It bore that in the course of a barroom brawl one Jim O'Brien, a well known character, had his existence terminated prematurely. He was a good fellow in the main and not without friends. One of the dead man's associates, in deep grief over his demise, erected a wooden slab over his grave on which he had written in large letters:

"Jim O'Brien departed for heaven at 9:30 a. m."

"A local humorist happened along soon afterward and appended the following:

"Heaven, 4:20 p. m.—O'Brien not yet arrived. Intense excitement. The worst is feared."

Love of Country.

For the love of country, as such, it would be difficult to decide between the Highlander of Scotland and the mountain born inhabitants of the Tyrol. Both will wander in search of fortune to the ends of the world and yet look back to their native mountains as their only real home. The same is true of the Swiss, although in a lesser degree. It is a very singular fact that inhabitants of mountainous countries possess this feeling of attachment in a much intenser form than those of flat countries.

Lacked Heart.

"Once there was a lawyer out near Galesburg," said an Illinois congressman, "who made a brilliant defense in a certain case. Men praised his effort. 'Will he make his mark for ability as an advocate?' some one asked. 'No,' replied the veteran lawyer. 'His ability begins here at the Adam's apple and extends upward. He must have something under his left breast.' The congressman cited this as an example why some speeches fail in the house of representatives."—Washington Post.

IN THE SUGAR BUSH

[Copyright, 1902, by the S. S. McClure Company.]

That March afternoon as Zeb Taylor made his rounds of the sugar bush with pails suspended from a neck yoke to empty the brimming troughs of sap and convey them to the barrels at the fire it all came back to him so forcibly that he seemed to be working in a dream. He had known Nellie Tompkins since childhood. The two farmhouses stood close together, and the children had been Zeb and Nell to each other until he had become his father's "hired man" and she had put on long dresses. Zeb had never escorted any other girl to the circus, to a picnic, to camp meeting, to a harvest dance or a corn shucking, and Nell had never encouraged any other young man.

The old folks had looked upon it as a matter of course that the young couple would get married in due time. It was only after the girl had been sent away to school and her letters to Zeb had been few and far between that he awoke to the fear of losing her.

Nell Tompkins at eighteen was a good looking, attractive girl, and Zeb realized that education and society would improve her still more. Other young men would be attracted, and he would stand no show.

As Zeb reached the camp and emptied his buckets of sap into the barrels he lingered and thought of more recent sorrows. Nell Tompkins had returned from school two weeks before on a vacation. He had hastened over to the farmhouse in his working clothes to welcome her, and plainly she had been shocked. There was no warmth in her handshake, no love in her eyes. Even when he reappeared a night or two later in his Sunday best she had called him Mr. Taylor and had refused to remember how he had carried her on his back over mudholes and boosted her over fences. A change had come to blast all his hopes, and on his road home he made up his mind to face it like a man.

While he mended the line fence between the two farms next morning he raised his voice in song so that Nell Tompkins might realize that he was not taking her conduct to heart, but his voice sounded like a crow's. When he met Farmer Tompkins, he made a great pretense of being jolly, and he started a report that he was "stuck" on Abigail Spooner and almost in love with Hetty Cable. He also kept away from the Tompkins farmhouse, and if any one asked him for news of Nell it appeared to take him all of thirty seconds to recall her name.

Thus Zeb Taylor had tried to make himself believe that he was getting the best of it. Night had come in the sugar bush. Zeb had eaten a cold supper while the sap in the pan boiled and foamed and later on had cut up the wood to be used through the hours of darkness. Then he sat down on a log to smoke and figure out how many pails of sirup would be the result of that run of sap. He intended to follow the sirup to the "sugar off" process and count up the pounds of sugar, but his thoughts insensibly drifted away to Nell Tompkins, and for a long ten minutes he was oblivious of his surroundings. Then he was suddenly called to life by the hoot of an owl. He could have suppressed the cold shivers inside of two minutes had not the hoot of the bird been followed by the scream of a woman. The sugar bush was a mile away from any house, and the voice of a woman in the dark woods weakened Zeb's knees and brought his heart into his throat. He was shaking with alarm when the owl hooted again, a hoot full of the direst peril, and again it was followed by the scream of a woman whose life was menaced. Zeb stopped only to grab up a club, and then he made a rush into the darkness. He had only fifty feet to go before discovering Nell Tompkins leaning up against the trunk of a tree.

"You—you here!" gasped Zeb as he came to a halt.

"Y—yes, and, oh, Zeb, the bear—the bear!" she exclaimed as she held out her arms to him.

"What bear? Where? When?"

"He's just roared out twice, and you—you—"

"Yes, I heard him roar, but don't you be afraid," said Zeb as he put his arm around her and gently walked her to the fire. The arm still encircled her as they sat down on the log together, and he asked:

"Nell, did you start for anywhere and get lost?"

"I—I don't know," she half sobbed.

"I heard you were making sugar down here all alone and that you were going to sugar off tonight."

"Not quite so soon."

"And I thought—thought—"

"What did you think, Nell?"

"I thought if I came down you'd give me some maple wax on a white chip and that I would say that I was sorry if I hurt your feelings the other night."

"And you got lost in the woods?" queried Zeb as his heart began to melt.

"I—I—guess so. It was awfully dark."

"And a bear growled at you?"

"Such awful growls! Oh, Zeb, I was so glad to see you! I might have been eaten alive!"

"Y—es. Say, Nell, you are sorry, I'm sorry and what?"

"Why, you'll go home with me, won't you?"

"Yes, and what then?"

"Why, if pa and ma haven't gone to bed—and I don't think they have—you might want to talk to 'em, you know."

"Yes, I know," whispered Zeb as he lifted her face and kissed her. And then the sap in the pan boiled and snapped, and the owl above their heads chuckled in his throat and flew away to other fields of romance.

Lord Derby Won

Lord Derby won the match race with Boralm at Hartford, Conn., Saturday.

The race was for $20,000 a side, and a per cent of the gate, not to be less than $10,000. The sum won by Lord eDrby will exceed the original $50,000. As a contest the race was a disappointment, Boralm after the first heat was decidedly off and pulled, lagged and rolled in his gait. In the third heat he went to a bad break on the lower turn and Lord Derby could easily have shut him out in this heat had Driver Geers desired to do so. The time in this heat was only 2:18 1-4, with final quarter in 0:33 1-4.

On examination after the heat it was discovered that Boralm had laid bare his ankle to the bone, also had cut his quarter off, which necessitated his being drawn.

The final heat was a walkover for Lord Derby, in order to comply with the conditions of the race, the time being 3:44, immediately after which Mr. Geers drove the gelding an exhibition mile in 2:08 bat, the fractional time being 0:32 1-4, 1:05, 1:26 3-4, 2:08.

Tennis Championships.

H. L. and R. F. Doherty of England won the Eastern championship in doubles Saturday, at Longwood, Mass., by defeating R. D. Wrenn and brother in a match which was brilliantly played by a score of 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, 6-2.

The Doherty brothers will meet the Western champions, Kreigh Collins and L. H. Waidner of Chicago.

The Doherty brothers are after the Davis cup and should they defeat Culhurs and Wadner, they will play D. T. Davis and Holcombe Ward.

W. A. Larned the present National champion, was beaten 6-3, 3-6, 6-2, 7-5 by W. J. Cuythier of Philadelphia. This was a great surprise. Experts say the outcome of the match for the Davis cup this week is very doubtful.

Lajoie at Columbus.

Quite a number of Newark people attended the American League championship game, played Sunday afternoon at Columbus between Washington and Cleveland. The chief interest centered in Lajoie, the great Cleveland second baseman. As is usual in the case where one man's play is featured he was a disappointment to many his handling of thrown balls being ragged at times. He made one scratch hit, beating out a high infield bouncer. But at that, he is the greatest of them all. His every movement is perfect grace, and in appearance he is a magnificent physical specimen. He was applauded to the echo, when he stepped up in the first inning. Delahanty and Jack Doyle were also given a hand when they came to bat. Newark attendants at the game wanted to see Cleveland win, but the Senators landed on Yöting Hess, an amateur of Dayton, who took Bernhart's place in the ninth, for a double, and two singles, which with a base on balls, netted them three runs. The final score was 5 to 2.

disposal of the men free of cost. The Y. M. C. A. tent will also be the place of social meetings and entertainments during the encampment.

Captain Herman Werner of the 8th infantry has been detailed as provost marshal for the week, and Company F of the same regiment is provost guard with headquarters at the court house in Newark. The provost guard, while unpopular with some of the men proved a good thing at the last camp. It helped to keep the boys in line and the men who ventured away from camp without a pass were sure to be sent back on the next car. During the week the guard made a number of arrests for minor offenses but nobody was charged with any serious breach of the peace. The local police force had no trouble whatever with the soldiers.

The engineers who are here from Cleveland will do all sorts of field work, such as putting up fortifications and making hasty entrenchments. General Speaks says that he has left the work to be done by the engineers almost wholly in the hands of Major McQuigg who commands the Battalion. It is probable that some bridge work will be attempted and that Raccoon creek will be spanned. Captain Vincent of the Engineers, who has been made range officer during the camp, today restored the telephone system, which proved of such value during the First's encampment. Lines run to all the regimental headquarters and to the rifle range connecting with an exchange on the ground and with that to the Newark exchange and the United States Long Distance lines over Ohio.

As only one body was in camp on Sunday the Engineers were the only ones who had officers of the day and guard as follows: Officer of the day, Captain Pope; officer of the guard, Lieut. MacAaron.

The ground is in admirable condition for the camp and all signs point to a successful gathering of the troops. It is probable that next year there will be a division encampment of the entire Ohio National Guard at Newark at one time. Governor Nash and General Dick have talked this over and are known to favor it, while the plan is said to meet the approval of the commanders of the various regiments.

This is a business camp. The First Brigade encampment under General W. V. McMaken here recently was that too, but General Speaks in command of the forces now on the ground without saying so, evidently intends that the Second Brigade shall, if possible, outdo the other half of the Ohio Guardsmen whose encampment ended the latter part of July. General Speaks was a visitor at that gathering of soldiers and was a close student of all that went on. He says: "Ernest work will be expected from both officers and men and brigade commanders will see that this requirement is strictly complied with. The camp will be conducted on strictly military lines in accordance with the spirit of the order and every effort will be put forth to make it one of the most successful of camp duty ever performed in this state."

General Speaks was not speaking for publication when he uttered those words but they were issued to the men under him in command.

From the start this morning at five o'clock till tonight every commander on the ground seems to have had the commander's instructions in mind. It has been military from start to finish and that program is to be carried out until one week from today when the Second Brigade boys will wend their way homeward after what is hoped to be one of the most successful military encampments ever held in Ohio.

The regimental commanders are imbued with the same sentiments that the brigadier general expresses. For instance, Colonel Coit of the Fourth, says: "Our camp will be strictly military. We are here to put in some hard work. There will be no 'booze' tent at our camp and we expect to put in the time at good solid work with plenty of opportunity for recreation. The camp is beautifully located with room for extended order. On Wednesday night the regiment will give a reception to the Spanish-American War Veterans of Newark and the Newark Board of Trade. There will be an evening parade and a band concert for the occasion. I understand that a reception will be extended to the regiment later in the week at Idlewild park. We will also invite the ladies out to evening parade and to listen to a band concert."

While visitors are welcome in camp there will be no "hangers-on." When mess time comes visitors will not be invited to dine and when time for taps arrives those who do not take the hint, will have to be invited to leave the ground. The newspaper men in camp, however, are exceptions to the rule. They are being well cared for and every opportunity is given them to get at the facts for their respective papers.

The state camp ground here contains 120 acres but as stated yesterday, an additional tract of 65 acres has been leased for this camp. The ground includes the famous ancient earthworks—the circle and octagon mounds which have been restored to their old time condition by the state. In the circle mound where the Fourth and Eighth regiments are stationed is a tract of 20 acres. Immediately east is the grove where the governor and General Dick and the brigade headquarters are located. Parallel walls connect the circle with the octagon of 50 acres, level as a floor and nicely covered with closely cropped sod, where part of the troops drill and have their evening parades.

The electric cars run from Newark at short intervals for the accommodation of the men and visitors.

The camp is on high ground and from the bluff overlooking Raccoon creek and valley is a beautiful view. Below the bluff is the rifle range, 600 yards, which is in such a favorable location and so well built that the United States regulars will be sent over again this fall as they were last year to practice. The regulars come from the Columbus barracks.

The headquarters of the Fourth regiment face east, the Fifth northwest, the Seventh south, and the Eighth and the Cleveland Engineers face east.

THE FOURTH

Sketch of Colonel A. B. Coit's Regiment of Which Newark's Co. G Forms a Part.

The Fourth regiment of infantry, O. N. G., formerly the old Fourteenth, was organized by Special Orders No. 216, dated October 20th, 1877. When the regiment was mustered into the state service it was composed of seven companies as follows: Co. A, Columbus, Captain Chas. S. Ammel; Co. B, Thurman Light Guards, Columbus, Captain Harry Seibert; Co. C, Westerville, Captain Isaac N. Custer; Co. D, Darby Videttes, West Jefferson, Captain Jacob Martin; Co. E, Marysville, Captain William Curry; Co. F, Converse Guards, Columbus, Captain John W. Chapin; Co. G, Grosvenor Rifles, Richwood, Captain John P. Slemmons.

The first election of officers for the regiment resulted as follows: Henry Heinmiller, colonel; William L. Curry, lieutenant colonel; John W. Chapin, major. Colonel Heinmiller, who was superintendent of the Columbus Fire Department, did not have the time to give to military matters and upon his resignation George D. Freeman was elected and duly commissioned colonel of the regiment.

In 1878 two more companies were added, making a strength of nine companies in the organization and in 1879, the Joy Guards of Delaware, were added to the command and later two other companies making a full regiment. The regiment has been on duty at every call issued in the state since its organization, and also had the honor of being the only Ohio regiment which saw actual service during the Spanish American war in 1898. When war was declared the Fourteenth infantry consisted of only ten companies.

The regiment was filled to its full quota by the addition of a company from Mt. Vernon and one from Columbus. On Monday, April 24th, the Columbus companies assembled at the armory in that city and on the following day the remaining companies of the regiment arrived in the city and moved into camp at Bulliet Park on April 28th. The regiment was mustered into the United States service on the 9th of May, 1898, and on May 15th took its departure from Camp Bushnell and the next day arrived at Camp Thomas, Chickamauga Park, Ga., where it remained for sixty-seven days, when the Second brigade, First Division, First Army Corps, consisting of the Fourth Ohio, Third Illinois and Fourth Pennsylvania received orders to join the forces concentrating for the purpose of making a conquest of Porto Rico. On July 22d, the regiment left Camp Thomas and on Friday, July 28th, embarked on the St. Paul and were landed at Arroyo, Porto Rico on the third of August. The regiment won glory for itself in the skirmish attending the taking of Guayama and several other minor scraps. On October 25th, the different companies having embarked on the Chester for the return trip to the United States, the steamer left San Juan and on November third, arrived at Jersey City. During the return voyage one man, Albert L. Verrier, a private in Company K of Delaware, died and was buried at sea. On the return home the regiment visited Washington where it was reviewed by President McKinley, after which it left Washington and arrived in Columbus on November 6th.

After being given a two months furlough, the regiment assembled at Columbus and was mustered out of the United States service on January 20th, 1899.

On July 3rd, 1899, there were six of the old companies formerly in the regiment when it returned home from the Spanish American war, which had been reorganized and were unattached. Two companies, one localied at Newark and the other at Chillicothe, both of whom formerly belonged to the Seventh O. U. S. V. I. were attached to the six already named and by special order No. 114, dated July 14th, 1899, these eight companies were organized into the present Fourth regiment Ohio National Guard.

On July 22d, 1899, a company at Marion was mustered in and assigned to the regiment as Co. D.

The company at Marysville was mustered in and assigned to the regiment as Co. E. There are now eleven companies in the regiment, one having been mustered into the state service on Tuesday evening, July 22d, at Washington C. H., Ohio.

The field and staff have been changed a number of times and there are few of the old faces to be seen at the present time.

After the war Colonel Coit preferred retirement and Lieutenant Colonel C. Barton Adams was appointed Assistant Adjutant General of the State. Major John C. Speaks was elected to the colonelcy with Captain Walsh, as Lieut.-Col. Captains White, Potter and Blizzard were elected majors to command their respective battalions. Colonel Speaks was elected Brigadier General, commanding the Second Brigade, and on May 3rd, 1900, Major Jos. D. Potter was elected to command the regiment.

After the reorganization of the regiment excellent service in the street car riots at Cleveland in July and August, 1899, and at the Akron riots in 1900.

The following is a complete roster of the officers of the Fourth regiment O. V. I. during the War with Spain: Colonel Alonzo B. Coit, Columbus; Lieut.-Col. TROOPERS TRIP HOME.

Troop B, O. N. G., arrived home from camp shortly before 5 o'clock Saturday and reported at their troop armory on Gay street considerably tired out after their long ride over from Newark. It is said some of them will eat their meals standing for the next few days. The boys all report a pleasant week in camp, but were not altogether pleased with the long practice marches going and coming. They broke camp after an early breakfast Saturday morning and made a leisurely ride home through the hot sun, stopping en route for dinner at Pataskala.—Columbus Press.

LATE IN AFTERNOON

The Regiments Were on the Ground Ready for the Week's Encampment—Dinner Ready

Camp McKinley, Aug. 4.—It was 2:30 pm before the last of Second brigade soldiers reached the state camp ground but things moved with such precision and speed that the routine was within an hour taken up by the last men on the ground.

The Fourth regiment reached camp at noon in a special train on the Pan Handle railroad. The regiment, under the command of Colonel A. B. Coit, was marched from the Newark Machine works to the quarters of the command within the circle mound.

The troops were received with cheers from the Newark Company G, under Capt. C. G. Crawford, who had been on the camp ground since Sunday noon.

The Fifth regiment, Col. Zimmerman, from Cleveland, and the Eighth infantry from Akron, Bucyrus and other northern Ohio towns commanded by Col. Volrath, came in over the Toledo and Ohio Central railway, being unloaded at Showman's crossing about a mile west of the camp ground. These organizations with the Seventh regiment under Col. C. A. Thompson of Ironton, which came in two detachments, all arrived about the same time at the siding and all marched overland to camp, striking the ground after three o'clock this afternoon.

The cooks that had accompanied the detail yesterday had attended to their part of the program and the troops did the rest. This evening each of the regiments on the ground, the Fourth, Fifth, Seventh and Eighth, will have dress parade, and many people from the city will no doubt be present to witness the pretty sight. Tonight the regimental bands will play to the delight of soldiers and citizens alike.

An order was issued from general headquarters during the day, relieving the detail from the Ninth Battalion, (colored) consisting of Sergeant Johnson one corporal and seven privates, from Company B, of Columbus, who have been on the ground since July 7, from further duty. These men have been guarding the state property during the interim of the brigade encampments.

PARENTS

Of the Girl Reunited When the Father Appeared to Give Consent to Her Wedding

Zanesville, O., Aug. 4.—A pathetic incident occurred in the office of the Probate Court late Saturday evening. Several days ago Henry Taylor applied to Probate Judge Andrews and asked for a marriage license for himself and Miss Nellie Schumacher. The age of the bride-elect was given as 16 years, and the applicant was told that he must first secure the consent of the parents of Miss Schumacher to the nuptials.

The young man explained hesitatingly that it might be impossible to secure the consent of the father of his sweetheart, as her parents had become estranged a few years ago, since which time the father had been living in Cleveland. However, he left the court room with the understanding that the consent of both father and mother was necessary, and resolved to secure the consent of both. The two young lovers subsequently wrote to Mr. Schumacher, whose home since the estrangement has been in Cleveland, and asked him to consent to the marriage, and so express himself in a letter which might be submitted to the court.

Then they waited patiently for a reply, but none came, and their spirits drooped accordingly. They were surprised Saturday morning, however, by the appearance of the father in person, who not only gave his consent to the wedding, but made overtures to his wife for peace. The couple met in the Probate Court room by prearrangement, and while the license was being issued for the wedding of the daughter the parents effected a complete reconciliation, and the young people seemed not on bit happier than the old folks when they left the court room.

AN ANCIENT EDICT

[Original.]

Many of the laws of medieval times were very curious. At first cases were decided by combat, and it was a long while before the jury system came into use. In those days punishment was very disproportionate to the crime. During the reign of King Edward IV. of England a young girl of Yorkshire was wooed by two lovers, the one a young farmer of her own rank, the other the prodigal son of a wealthy merchant. Robert Dangerfield, the farmer, held the principal place in Marjory's affections, but Tom Ricketts, the merchant's son, being heir to great prospective wealth, was a rival to be dreaded. Ricketts was a great rascal and at first never intended to marry the girl, but Marjory was well able to take care of herself, and the young scapegrace soon discovered that he could only have her, if at all, after a legitimate wedding ceremony. As soon as he came into this condition Marjory, possibly in order to tantalize him, declared that she intended, after all, to wed Robert Dangerfield.

Ricketts by this time was madly in love and ready to commit any crime to gain the girl. One dark night he stole a sheep from one of his father's tenants, carried it to the cottage of his rival and tethered it to the doorknob. Robert awoke in the morning and was astonished to find the sheep, which, with the simple faith of that day, he considered a gift sent him from heaven. Tom Ricketts told the owner that he had seen his animal in possession of Dangerfield. The young farmer was arrested and thrown into prison on a charge of sheep stealing. Then Ricketts rode to the home of Marjory to tell her the news:

"Dangerfield has been sheep stealing. He is in prison and will be tried and hanged. Do not waste more time, Marjory, in listening to men of low degree. Set the day for our wedding. We will travel and see foreign lands, and when we return I will build a castle for you to live in."

Now, Marjory was no fool. She knew that Ricketts was in earnest, but she distrusted him. Furthermore, she had a will of her own and usually took the opposite side from sheer obstinacy.

"I won't marry you, Tom Ricketts," she said, "if you build twenty castles. I am going to marry Robert Dangerfield."

"You mean if Robert is not hanged?"

"I will marry him whether he is hanged or not."

Marjory visited Dangerfield in prison and asked him what she could do to save him. Her lover bade her go to Bleckstun, a famous lawyer of that name, and ask him if he could suggest any way out of the difficulty. Bleckstun familiarized Marjory with the case, then questioned Marjory.

"You say that you love the accused?"

he said.

"I do."

"And will marry him if he is acquitted?"

"Yes, and if he is hanged."

"What! Marry him in prison on the eve of execution?"

"I will marry him at the foot of the gallows."

The lawyer bade her go and tell the prisoner that there was hope for him, but that his escape from death, if at all, would be by a hair's breadth. Dangerfield was tried, but the lawyer did not appear to defend him. The evidence against him was so strong, the sheep having been found tethered to his door, that he was pronounced guilty and sentenced to be hanged. He offered to decide the matter by combat with Ricketts, whom he suspected of having brought the misfortune upon him, but Ricketts declined on the ground that he was not the owner of the sheep.

The day of the execution was a holiday, as all such days were at that time, though Dangerfield's neighbors were plunged in grief, for he was much respected among them, and they did not see why he should have stolen one sheep when he was the possessor of several hundred. Marjory went with him to the gallows, and, seeing Tom Ricketts by the way among the lookers on, she gave him a scowl of defiance and hatred. On arriving at the place of execution she cast a glance over at the assembled multitude and was astonished to see among them the lawyer Bleckstun.

When all was ready and the hangman was about to adjust the noose, Marjory cried out:

"I claim this man in marriage."

There was the silence of surprise among the spectators, then further astonishment when Bleckstun arose from his seat and said in a loud voice:

"And I claim him as a free man."

"Who are you?" asked the sheriff.

"I am Edmond Bleckstun."

There was a hum in the assembly, for all knew of the wonderful legal wisdom of the renowned Bleckstun.

"On what ground do you claim the prisoner?"

"Under an edict of his most gracious majesty King Edward IV. which commands that when a man is to be executed for crime if any woman shall demand him in marriage he shall be spared and given to the woman."

The sheriff had too great respect for the learned councillor's knowledge of law to act counter to his opinion, and the friends of Dangerfield set up a cry: "A marriage! A marriage!"

The priest who had administered absolution to the prisoner then performed the wedding ceremony, and the bride and groom walked away, followed by the acclamations of those who, having come to see an execution, had looked upon a wedding.

Proof was afterward adduced that Ricketts had stolen the sheep, and he was hanged for the crime.

NOW PRIVATE BANCROFT BECAME AN OFFICER

[Original.]

Sandy Bancroft, a private in the United States forces in the province of Santiago in 1898, was hungry. Rations had not been forthcoming for several days, and the boys' stomachs began to be a healthy convex shape to be a sickly concave. Sandy was on picket, and exposure made food all the more necessary.

"I'm going foraging," he said. "Better not," said his comrades. "You'll fall into the hands of the dagoes and if you don't you'll get into trouble for leaving your post."

Sandy preferred to take both risks to enduring the pangs of hunger. The officer of the picket was worn out and sound asleep, so he need not know of Sandy's absence, and if he did he would not dare report him sleeping on post. Slinging his Krug-Jorgensen over his shoulder, Sandy buckled his revolver to his hip and started forth. Seeing a house in the distance, he made for it and on reaching it knocked at the door. A black-eyed Spanish girl opened it and stood looking at him suspiciously.

"Could you give me a bite?" asked the soldier, lifting his hat politely.

The girl shook her head, indicating that she did not understand English, whereupon Sandy made pantomimic motions descriptive of shoveling in food. The girl led the way into the dining room and placed on the table the remains of last night's supper. Sandy exercised great ingenuity in pantomiming his gratitude, then sat down and fell to. Meanwhile the girl left the room. After the soldier had eaten his fill he stuffed his pockets for his comrades, then arose from the table and, taking his gun, was about to depart when the girl came in, apparently in great excitement, and, pantomiming in her turn, gave him to understand that the Spaniards were coming. A staircase leading to the cellar, Sandy descended, and the door was closed. Then he heard the sound of heavy furniture being moved on to the trap, and it began to dawn upon him that he was a prisoner.

Having got in, the first thing he did was to look about him to discover how he could get out. There was but one little square window, near the ceiling, which was covered with an iron grating. Consequently Sandy was as safe as a rat in a trap. He had not been there long before the girl, accompanied by a Spanish officer, appeared at the window. Sandy seized his rifle, but the two speedily betook themselves out of range. He could hear them chattering and made out from one or two words he understood that one of them—the officer, he supposed—would go for a guard to remove him. Then he heard footsteps in the room above, after which all was quiet.

Sandy gave himself up as captured for a time, then resumed his interrupted reconnoitering for a means of escape. A chimney was built from the cellar, where it was of stone, with no opening, but the house was very old and the stones had been loosely put together. Sandy tugged at one of them and succeeded in removing it. This loosened two or three more, and he put his head and shoulders through. The chimney was large enough for him to pass through it, and he determined to climb up. Leaving his rifle, relying solely on his revolver, he got through the aperture and, using back and knees, shinned up to the floor above, where he encountered a broad, flat hearthstone. Sandy was pretty strong and succeeded in lifting it a few inches. Through the crack he saw the Spanish officer sitting with his arms and head on a table, asleep.

Sandy's movements from this point were conducted with the utmost care. Bracing himself, he gave the stone another lift and, drawing his revolver, put it lengthwise between one end and the floor. This was a critical moment. If the officer awakened, Sandy was lost. Resting only a moment, he gave the stone one more tug and got it on end. Then he gently rested it against the fireplace and in another moment was sitting on a coping.

At this moment a loose stone became detached and dropped to the cellar, making a great noise. The officer raised his head, and great was his astonishment at seeing Sandy sitting in the fireplace. For a moment he seemed paralyzed. Then, drawing a pistol, he was about to fire when his arm fell limp and his pistol dropped on the floor. Sandy had winged him.

"Hands up! 'Bout face! March!" cried Sandy, but as the officer did not understand English his capter was obliged to resort to pantomime again, which the officer, with a revolver pointed at him, was not slow in understanding. Sandy marched his captive out of the house and toward the American lines. When he got within bailing distance of the picket, a bullet sang by his ear from the rear, and turning, he saw a dozen Spaniards, led by the girl who had trapped him, standing at a rise in the ground, gesticulating. At the same moment the picket advanced to Sandy's rescue.

Captain Murphy of the picket post had finished a two hours' nap and was rubbing his eyes when he heard the firing. Starting up, he saw Sandy Bancroft coming in with his prisoner. "What were you doing outside the line?" demanded the captain sternly.

"Reconnoitering," said Sandy.

The officer thought of his nap on picket and concluded to compromise for silence with Sandy and the men who were munching the food Sandy had brought for them.

"You are a brave man," he said. "I shall recommend you for promotion."

WEATHER

THIS IS WHAT MR. HICKS SAYS IS IN STORE

For the Good People During Month of August—He Was Right in July.

In his August Word and Works Mr. Hicks makes these predictions as to the weather for the first half of the month:

The 3rd and 4th of August are central days of reactionary storm disturbances. On and touching these days the temperature will rise to a climax of warmth, and barometric readings will fall, progressively from west to east, ending in threatening clouds, with thunder, light rains and heavy bluster in many sections. On the 5th earth passes between the sun and the great world Jupiter, near new moon on the third and the moon's passage over the celestial equator on the 6th. These facts will necessitate excessively warm weather, and if violent electrical storms do not result seismic perturbations will be most natural. It is questionable whether normal reactions to cooler weather will follow the storm period, or whether general and heavy rains will attend these storms, during much of August. We believe that very warm weather, with light precipitation—even hurtful drouth are in store for most parts of the country until the latter part of the month.

The storm diagram indicates the presence of a Mars period, which is central early in September, covering almost all of August. As laid down in our Foundation Facts, published nearly twenty years ago, and confirmed by long and critical observation, it is a fact that these equinoctial periods of the planet Mars almost invariably perpetuate for many weeks the kind of weather, and other phenomena, prevailing at the beginning of these periods. It is therefore reasonably safe to say that the key to the character of weather to be expected in August and much of September, will be found in the kind of weather we have from the 1st to the 15th of August. Whatever the general character of the weather it must be remembered that the regular and "reactionary" storm period will not be obliterated.

AMUSEMENTS.

The vaudeville bill at Idlewild park this week sizes up as the strongest of the season with the famous Rachettas as the feature.

The first laugh comes with Slackey and Dell in their comedy slack wire performance. They are A No. 1 and clever artists. Following comes Ruth Melta, the singing comedienne in her latest well rendered coon songs. She has a pleasing stage presence and a charming voice.

The Major Sisters, Hazel and Flossie, have a decidedly up to date turn which is well worked. Their fencing and boxing features in the latter of which they introduce the blow that knocked out Fitzsimmons, are catchy and make a strong hit with their audience.

Jack Burch the magician, catches live gold fish out among the audience. His bird, billiard ball and hypnotized card tricks cause much wonderment and comment. The wonderful Rachetta Brothers, close the bill with their marvelous act which has made them world renowned. And novelty acrobats and barrel jumpers they have been features with Ringling Bros. circus and are top liners in their expert act. They are indeed wonders and will undoubtedly prove great drawing cards for the week. Fletcher's Imperial orchestra entertain with their usual ne music and the kineoscope is running full time.

are arranged in amphitheatre style, so from a reader of the Pittsburg Post, descriptive of a wonderful locomotive

in Africa, which is given in the writer's own account:

Pittsburg, Pa., July 18, 1902.

Editor Railway Department: Dear
Sir—I am an engineer on the B. & O.
railroad. I was traveling through Africa some time ago and saw the most powerful locomotive in the world. I want to tell you about it so that you can let your readers know that they have larger engines there than they have here. This engine has five acres of grate bars, four acres of netting in the front end and it took a man a day and a half to walk through the cylinder. Every time she exhausts it rains for 20 minutes. There is an elevator that goes to the headlight to hoist the oil as it requires five barrels to fill it.
It takes two men 45 minutes to light one signal lamp. The engineer has the X-ray to watch for signals and after running six months he goes blind.
It takes two astronomers with powerful telescopes to see her going and the glare of the headlight can be seen through a hill half a mile thick. It took nine carpenters four months to build the pilot. They use a steam shovel to give her coal. The tank holds 27 car loads and every time they wash the boiler it is necessary to drain the Suez canal. The pony wheels are as large as a round turntable used here. The roundhouse force holds a picnic in the fire box every summer. She carries 860 pounds of steam and 300 pounds of air on the train line. She can haul 72 loads and in good weather she might walk off with 722. She runs from Kimberley to Johannesburg, a distance of 900 miles. The wind of the train has been known to knock down monster trees of the forest. As she makes the run in three hours and 41 minutes, when she leaves the track there is an earthquake in China four days later.
The throttle is pulled by a stationary engine in the cab. The lubricator holds four barrels of oil. The train goes so fast that when she is stopped she is going 10 miles per hour.
This is a true story Mr. Editor, and I can vouch for it. Yours respectfully, terests of Business Men.There are many instances of where a suitable catch line well drilled into people has been of great value in building business. The best catch line is one that fits your business best, and the discoverer of such a line is apt to be due more to inspiration than to effort. Pick the distinctive feature of your stock or business methods and endeavor to express it in a breath.If you can coin a phrase that expresses your central business idea or emphasizes some feature that marks your store alone, you can make good use of it. It puts into condensed form an idea that will get hold of people and influence them if persistently presented to them. One fact about your business well lodged in the heads of people is as good as a score that do not penetrate.You can make people believe about what you like if you go about it properly. If a man comes to you today and tells you there will be a panic inside of six months, you will pay no attention to him. If another comes tomorrow with the same story, he will get no attention, but you will idly wonder what is getting into folks. The third man you will argue the matter with.

The fourth will get more of a hearing,
and you will begin to see signs of disaster yourself. By the time the tenth man has made the statement you will be ready to tell folks the same story yourself.Probably you yourself could not be influenced in such a manner, but the common run of people are built that way and will believe what they are told often enough. That is why an expressive catch phrase does good. It comes to stand for you and your methods and of necessity is remembered when goods in your line are wanted.As ordinarily used such a phrase is of little value, because it is not properly hammered into people. Such a line should go on letter heads, billheads, stationery, envelopes, should go into every ad. or circular, should be seen about the store and should appear on labels. Put it on a sticker to attach to goods and packages. Let people see it everywhere. If it means what it says, people are going to respond to it.

asked."Cable car," he said, with the street urchin's characteristic economy of words."Too bad!" I remarked.
"Oh, but it might 'a' been worse,
sir," the boy replied. "The company paid the doctor and gave mother $300.
That paid all our debts and left us $500 in bank, and it's all there 'cept $40 we had to take out when mother was sick, and I sell more papers than most of

to a St. Louis Official.STORY OF FLIGHT FROM OUR ARMYEntries Indicate That the Filipino Leader Was Kept on the "Hot Foot"—Some of the Native Ceremonies Described—Grossness of Features of an Igorrote Feast.One of the most unique and important historical documents relative to the long elusive Aguinaldo has recently been received in St. Louis. The diary of Aguinaldo as signed by himself, with the "morning report" of his command every day, was one of the documentary properties which fell into the hands of the American commanders when Aguinaldo was captured. Typewritten copies were made and distributed among those who had won the highest title to the curious material, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
Through the influence of an official high in the affairs of the Philippines a copy of the diary was forwarded to an official in St. Louis.The diary, which has been translated from the Spanish, was started on Nov.
13, 1899, the date on which Aguinaldo and his staff were compelled to leave their stronghold at Bayambang and seek quarters less accessible to the American forces. The first objective point was Santa Barbara, a remote and mountainous resort. After a ride of several hours on the railway running out of Bayambang a march over the country was begun, with the mother and wife of Aguinaldo and the wives of other officials in the party. At the very beginning the way led through mud "reaching to the knees," and there is an account of the movement which began at 1 a. m. Santa Barbara was reached shortly before dawn, and then the march was resumed for "the extensive forests of Manaoag." A stop was made for breakfast, but no time was wasted.This is the entry for Nov. 15, the second day of the flight: "At daylight it was raining. At 9 a. m. we received news that the Americans were at the entrance of the town, and as we had only a small force, our vanguard not having arrived, we at once took the march for Alava, where there are some of General Tinio's forces. We arrived at that town about 12 o'clock in the day and kept up the march toward Rosario, the next town, passing through woods. The president's (Aguinaldo's) wife had a fainting spell or swimming of the head. We halted.
She was soon all right, and a bamboo cot was arranged for her. Then all at once appeared General Tinio, announcing to us that the Americans were pursuing us. We at once took up the march. The rain was heavy, and we were drenched. At 3:30 we reached Rosario. We passed on, commencing for the first time to ascend the mountains of the Famy settlement. The rain was incessant, and there was a great deal of mud. The hard wind and the cold made us shiver. We continued the ascent of the mountains, and as we had already reached an elevation of 500 meters it seemed that we were at a pretty great altitude and very close to the sky. But 5 o'clock in the morning arrived, and still we had not reached the summit. We kept up the march in the midst of the pouring rain, and just about 8 p. m. we arrived at the Famy settlement, located on the peak of the mountain. We were all wet and had no clothes for making a change, as the rear guard soldiers had our luggage with them. Being half dead from the effect of the rain, wind and cold and wishing to avoid bad results, we immediately entered the houses that were here and without delay kindled fires in the 'calons,' or native stoves, of the houses. We at once drew near the fire so the warmth might relieve us, and at the same time we took off our clothes to dry them. As soon as we were somewhat restored we ate—that is, each of us ate a little,
since there was not sufficient to satisfy the cravings of the stomach."The account of the restless pilgrimage extends from the latter part of 1899 to the end of March, 1901. There are no very lengthy notes recorded.
The predominating note is a scarcity of food, when sugar cane was eaten by the party en route. There is rainfall in almost every entry. The proximity of the American forces is frequently noted, and the subsequent entry always shows a different location. Some of the pages are devoted to descriptions of native orgies or ceremonials.
One of these particularly is recorded in graphic phrases. It occurs under a separate heading, "Description of the Kanao," and the definition is furnished that "the kanao is a feast which the Igorrotes celebrate in each ranch or settlement when one or any number of them secure the head of an enemy by means of battle or treach-ery." The ceremony is described as consisting of carving off the hands and feet of the decapitated body and taking these members to the house of the local chief. Then for a period of six nights the clans assemble at the chief's house, dancing about the head in a particularly gruesome manner. The warriors "scrub their faces with the hands and feet of the victim even after the process of decomposition has been near the house. On the third day the other parts are buried, to be dug up after a certain lapse of time so that the bones may be used as ornaments for the house."Largest Dock of All.The new Maas dock at Rotterdam

MRS. UPHAM

Widow of George Upham Died Saturday Night at Her Late Home on South Third Street.

Mrs. Margaret Upham, widow of George Upham, died between 7 and 8 o'clock Saturday evening at her home at 61 South Third street, her death being caused by heart failure.

Mrs. Upham was in her usual health, and was about the house, and sitting on the front porch, pretty much all day. Toward evening she complained some, but not enough to cause any alarm whatever. She lay down on a lounge in the sitting room, and peacefully slept away.

Mrs. Upham was one of Newark's pioneer women, having lived in this city for a period of 55 years. Her husband was a dealer in stocks, and was well known as a man of local influence and prominence. He died May 30, 1864.

She was born in Putnam, now a part of Zanesville, in Muskingum county, January 17, 1816, being 86 years, six months and 16 days old at the time of her death. Her name was Margaret Ewing and in 1838 she was married to George Upham, of which union three children were born, one of whom, James E. Upham, survives.

Mrs. Upham was a member of the Trinity Episcopal church, and had been ever since she came to Newark.

The funeral took place Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the home, Rev. B. F. Patt of the Baptist church conducting the services in the absence of Rev. G. W. Van Fossen. Interment in Cedar Hill.

An Open Letter.

To United States Judge Kelley: Charleston, West Virginia:

Dear Judge—I have wandered through the hazes and mazes of your deliverance from the bench last Saturday and fully appreciate the difficulty under which you labor in trying to reconcile the "injunctions" you have lately issued against the labor agitators with the principles of liberty and justice on which our government is founded. In order to help you out of the dilemma in which you are involved, let me kindly suggest that you look up the statutes of the United States and remember that the proper function of your court is to execute and not to make new laws for the members of labor unions or any other class of people. Sincerely,

TAKING NO CHANCES.

Why Tramps Would Not Stop at an Ohio Farmhouse.

"I thought to try a little experiment on tramps," said the Ohio farmer, "and I put up signs all along the road inviting them to call at my place. I had plenty of work for all who wanted it and was willing to give every one a fair show. They read the signs, and they came my way, but they didn't stop. They'd call at every other farmhouse, but they passed me by as if we had the smallpox. One evening I stood at the gate as one approached, and when he came up I asked: 'Did you see my signs along the road?'"

"Plenty of 'em," he replied.

"Goin' to stop?"

"Not on your life."

"I can give you supper and a good place to sleep."

"See here, I continued as he began to walk away, 'what's the matter that all you tramps pass me by? I don't look like a man up to tricks, do I?'"

"I can't say you do, but we ain't takin' no risks, you understand."

"Why, I guess the crowd thinks you are one of them fellers who invites a tramp in to supper and then keeps him at family prayers for an hour and a half afterward in order to get even with him."

LETTER

Addressed to "M. C. Manor, Newark, Ohio," Was Properly Delivered to Mr McNamar.

As one instance of the many trials and perplexities that beset the path of the mail carrier, who is popularly supposed by many to enjoy a snap, the following instance is given:

The letter was received at Newark Postoffice recently from some point in West Virginia, bearing the following address:

"Mr. M. C. Manor,
"Newar,
"Ohio."

It was soon found that there was no such person living in Newark, and to decide to whom the letter belonged was even a harder job than winning the capital prize in the Advocate guessing contest. The Postmaster and all the clerks put their heads together and George Kuppinger was the lucky man to find for whom it was meant. He decided that the letter was intended for the Macnamar Machine Works where he delivered it, and on Mr. McNamar opening it, his surmise proved correct.
